Advanced, Intermediate and Beginner Piano, Guitar, Bass, Drums, Voice

Will Remmers is a multi-instrumentalist, music director, and vocalist located in New York City where he collaborates at a professional level in opera, musical theater, rock/pop/jazz, orchestral, and solo performances. As a teacher, he instructs piano, guitar, bass guitar, folk instruments (ukulele, mandolin, banjo, accordion, etc.), drums, voice, music theory, recording, composition/songwriting, and orchestration. More than anything, he enjoys helping his students deepen their love and understanding of music through imparting not just the technical aspects of performance, but also the deeper reasons why music connects with us emotionally as a universal language in our global community. His current roster of students ranges from beginners as young as 4 or 5 making their first musical steps, ambitious teenagers looking to express themselves through their art, adults pursuing a career in music, seniors carving out a place in their lives for a long-desired connection to the musical world, and everyone in-between.
